

XVI Sunday of Ordinary Time 23 July 2023

To all who are tired and need rest; to all who mourn and need comfort; to all who are friendless and need friendship; to all who are discouraged and need hope; to all who sin and need a Savior; and to whomsoever will,

THIS PARISH OPENS WIDE HER DOORS IN THE NAME OF JESUS THE LORD!

SACRAMENTS

Holy Sacrifice of the Mass

Saturday (anticipated): 5:30 PM Sunday: 8:00 AM; 10:30 AM; 12:00PM

Monday-Saturday: 8:00 AM

Holy Days of Obligation: see inside

Penance & Reconciliation:

Monday-Thursday; Saturday: 7:30-7:50 AM Saturday afternoon: 4:00-4:50 PM

A Catholic is obliged to confess serious sins in kind and number to a priest. If one is conscious of having committed serious sin, Confession ought to be made before receiving the Eucharist.

Baptism: Please call to arrange for your child's baptism before or soon after birth. A Godparent must be a Catholic in good standing.

Anointing of the Sick:

Please call for a priest to celebrate this Sacrament of Healing and Forgiveness for someone who is seriously ill or in danger of death. Do not wait until the sick person is unconscious.

Matrimony:

All Catholics ought to seek to have their marriage blessed by the Church so as to live in God's good graces & receive the Eucharist. Marriage cannot validly exist between baptized persons unless it is also a sacrament (Canon 1055.2). Contact a priest a year prior to the intended date of marriage to ensure proper preparation.

Confirmation: Need to complete your Sacraments of Initiation? Call Mrs. Kachnowski at 908-245-6572. She will help you prepare for confirmation. If they can do so without serious inconvenience, Catholics ought to receive the Sacrament of Confirmation before being admitted to marriage (Canon 1065).

RCIA: Desire baptism? Called to be a Catholic Christian? Contact Deacon David at 908-245-6572 and he will help you discern God's call to holiness.

Save your Children from "adult" websites. Protect your chastity, now!

Go to Freefiltering.org and learn how to block those unwanted sites from your eyes. Protect your virtue, guard your children's innocence.

It really works by blocking sites in your Wi-Fi server. Act now before your children see one more pornographic site or one more "social media" site promoting the LGBTQ+ propaganda.

uring the Middle Ages, the Church wielded not only universal power over theological issues but also much influence over political and civil authorities. However, it never outlawed the grievous sin of prostitution. In fact, it was considered a necessary evil to curb men's lust. Churchmen felt that if brothels weren't available to men in cities, they would find other inappropriate outlets for their entertainment and endanger the virtue of innocent women, their wives and may even turn to sodomy. In an effort to prevent potential problems, civic officials permitted prostitution to function so long as it was regulated. St. Augustine said, "Remove prostitution from human affairs and you will destroy everything with lust"

This brings us to look at today's Gospel: "if you pull up the weeds, you might uproot the wheat along with them." Sin and vice are not ideal actions to any extent. They are against the natural order, conflict with Jesus' teachings, and are opposed to Catholic morality, yet those who sin are more in need of conversion and repentance, than in rejection and death. Remember we are all sinners in the hands of a merciful and loving God, unlike the God of the Puritans who saw God as One filled with anger (as per Johnathan Edwards' sermon). So long as a sin or vice is not murderous or abusive, can it be outlawed? Will outlawing it make any real lasting difference in a person's moral behavior or in society as a whole?

Ultimately, we are called to live a life of virtue and charity, not of vice and lust. Jesus tells us that we cannot pull up the "weeds" for when we do, we may be pulling up the "wheat" too. The "wheat" are those who in their heart have turned to Jesus. They have turned away from sin. So, while they may be mistaken for "weeds" for a time in their life, they may have repented. So, we who judge so poorly are not called to judge, but to leave that to God and his angels so that in the end, the good will be saved and those who chose evil, a life of vice and sin, will be sorted out and receive justice.

Let us then accept that we live in world of injustice, vice and temptation, for God let's his light shine on all of us. As we reject vice and sin, let's make sure we never reject another human being as Jesus died for the salvation of all. For as St. Thomas Aquinas taught, "grace perfects and builds on nature; it does not set it aside or destroy it."

Pax Christi, Fr. Paul

Grant me, O Lord my God, a mind to know you, a heart to seek you, wisdom to find you, conduct pleasing to you, faithful perseverance in waiting for you, and a hope of finally embracing you. Amen.

— St. Thomas Aquinas

World Youth Day and Converting Everyone to Christ

You have probably heard by now that a statement made by Bishop Américo Aguiar has caused quite a stir. Aguiar is the auxiliary bishop of Lisbon, Portugal, and he is the chief coordinator of the upcoming World Youth Day. Moreover, he was, in a very surprising move, just named a cardinal by Pope Francis. So he is a man of considerable weight—which is one reason why his remarks have gotten so much attention. He commented, in reference to the international gathering over which he is presiding, "We want it to be normal for a young Catholic Christian to say and bear witness to who he is or for a young Muslim, Jew, or of another religion to also have no problem saying who he is and bearing witness to it, and for a young person who has no religion to feel welcome and to perhaps not feel strange for thinking in a different way." The observation that excited the most wonderment and opposition was this: "We don't want to convert the young people to Christ or to the Catholic Church or anything like that at all." I will admit that the remark of his that disturbed me the most, however, was this one: "That we all understand that differences are a richness and the world will be objectively better if we are capable of placing in the hearts of all young people this certainty," implying that fundamental disagreement on matters of religion is good in itself, indeed what God actively desires. Lots of Catholics around the world have been, to put it mildly, puzzled by the cardinal-elect's musings.

In the wake of the controversy, Bishop Aguiar, to be fair, has walked back his statements quite a bit, insisting that he meant only to criticize the aggressive, brow-beating manner of sharing the faith that goes by the unlovely name of "proselytizing." (I must say that this clarification still does nothing to explain his straightforward assertion that he does not want to convert young people to Christ or to the Catholic Church.) But for the moment, I will let that go and take him at his word. Nevertheless, I would like to address a wider cultural issue that his intervention raises—namely, the simple fact that most people in the West would probably consider his original sentiments uncontroversial.

Behind so much of the language of tolerance, acceptance, and non-judgmentalism in regard to religion is the profound conviction that religious truth is unavailable to us and that it finally doesn't matter what one believes as long as one subscribes to certain ethical principles. Provided one is a decent person, who cares if he or she is a devout Christian, Buddhist, Jew, or Muslim—or nonbeliever? And if that is the case, then why wouldn't we see the variety of religions as a positive, one more expression of the diversity that so beguiles the contemporary culture? And given this epistemological indifferentism, wouldn't any attempt at "conversion" be nothing more than arrogant aggression?

As I have been arguing for years, and pace the current cultural consensus, the Catholic Church places an enormous emphasis on doctrinal correctness. It most assuredly thinks that religious truth is available to us and that having it (or not having it) matters immensely. It does not hold that "being a nice person" is somehow sufficient, either intellectually or morally; otherwise, it would never have spent centuries hammering out its creedal statements with technical precision. And it most certainly does maintain that evangelization is its central, pivotal, most defining work. St. Paul himself said, "Woe to me if I do not evangelize" (1 Cor. 9:16); and Pope St. Paul VI declared that the Church is nothing but a mission to spread the Gospel. Neither the first-century St. Paul nor the twentieth-century St. Paul thought for a moment that evangelizing is tantamount to imperialism or that religious "diversity" is somehow an end in itself. Rather, both wanted the whole world to be brought under the Lordship of Jesus Christ. This is precisely why every institution, every activity, every program of the Church is dedicated, finally, to announcing Jesus. Some years ago, when I was an auxiliary bishop in California, I was in dialogue with the board members of a Catholic high school. When I commented that the purpose of the school was, ultimately, evangelization, many of them balked and said, "If we emphasize that, we'll alienate most of our students and their parents." My response was, "Well, then you should close the school. Who needs one more secular STEM academy?" Needless to say, I was never invited back to address that board! But I didn't care. When any Catholic institution, ministry, or outreach forgets its evangelical purpose, it has lost its soul.

The same goes for World Youth Day. One of Pope St. John Paul II's greatest contributions to the Church, World Youth Day has always had, inescapably, an evangelical élan. It delighted the great Polish pope that so many of the young people of the world, in all of their diversity, came together at these gatherings, but if you had told him that the true purpose of the event was to celebrate difference and make everyone feel comfortable with who they are, and that you had no interest in converting anyone to Christ, you would have gotten a look to stop a train.

I'm scheduled to give five presentations at World Youth Day in Lisbon, and I would like to assure Bishop Aguiar that every single one of them is designed to evangelize.

> BISHOP ROBERT BARRON JULY 13, 2023

World Youth Day begins August 1, 2023 in Lisbon, Portugal. In your prayers, remember the thousands of youth that attend, may they grow in their faith and share it with the many. As Mary went in haste to tell the good news to her cousin Elizabeth, may we all announce what Christ has done for us. Fr. Paul Catholic Charities guides people through the darkness of despair, rejection and poverty to the light of hope, acceptance, and productivity. Last fiscal year, Catholic Charities has served 55,970 people through 86 programs at 26 sites in Essex, Hudson, Union and Bergen counties in the Archdioceses of Newark (FY 2021/2022).

May God bless you in abundance for your efforts.

The Mystery of the Liturgy

We ought to get back the dimension of the sacred in the liturgy. The liturgy is not a festivity; it is not a meeting for the purpose of having a good time. It is of no importance that the parish priest has cudgeled his brains to come up with suggestive ideas or imaginative novelties. The liturgy is what makes the Thrice-Holy God present amongst us; it is the burning bush; it is the Alliance of God with man in Jesus Christ, who has died and risen again. The grandeur of the liturgy does not rest upon the fact that it offers an interesting entertainment, but in rendering tangible the Totally Other, whom we are not capable of summoning. He comes because He wills. In other words, the essential in the liturgy is the mystery, which is realized in the common ritual of the Church; all the rest diminishes it. Men experiment with it in lively fashion, and find themselves deceived, when the mystery is transformed into distraction, when the chief actor in the liturgy is not the Living God but the priest or the liturgical director.
